APRIL 5, 1937.

Paragraph 3 of section 784, Postal Laws and Regulations, as amended December 30, 1936, under Order No. 9958 is hereby further amended to read as follows:

3. If the addressee has not died, reenlisted, removed, or, if a widow, remarried, the letters bearing instructions under the act of June 3, 1936, may be delivered to the addressee or, without his or her written order, to any member of his or her family or household, his or her clerk, servant, or agent who has been in the habit of receiving the addressee's ordinary mail with his or her knowledge and consent, or to any responsible person who presents the addressee's written order, except that in no case shall such mail be delivered to a claim agent, attorney, or broker. Such letters shall not be forwarded to another post office nor placed in lock or call boxes in the post office, nor delivered by city or rural carriers into receptacles on their routes. Upon receipt of such a letter addressed to the holder of a post-office box, notice shall be placed in the addressee's box requesting him to call or send a proper representative for the letter. The same procedure shall be followed with respect to such a letter addressed to rural-route boxes, unless the conditions are such that delivery at the addressee's residence is required by section 1014. The postmaster of any office to which such a letter has been inadvertently forwarded shall not effect delivery thereof but shall immediately return such letter to the post office of original address, such return to be made in post office penalty envelope together with a memorandum referring to the instructions printed on the Treasury Department envelope.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR IN THE MAILS FROM ABROAD

APRIL 27, 1937.

Effective at once, any Postal Union (regular) mail article or parcel post package received from abroad which is found to contain spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquors of any kind should be immediately withdrawn from the mails and turned over to the Collector of Customs for confiscation as a prohibited importation.

If the package contains admissible matter in addition to the intoxicating liquor, the liquor will be removed by the customs officer and the duty, if any, assessed on the admissible contents before the package is further transmitted in the mails. The customs officer will at the same time enclose in the package a notice informing the addressee of the seizure of the liquor, together with the reasons therefor.

Until further notice a bulletin of verification shall be sent by the United States exchange office of receipt to the foreign dispatching exchange office advising of the seizure of the liquor as a prohibited mail importation. If the liquor is discovered at an office other than the exchange office of receipt from abroad, such office shall make report to the exchange office from which received in order that the latter office may issue a bulletin of verification as indicated above. No reports of such seizures need be made to this office.

The above supersedes the instructions published under the caption "Liquor Prohibited Importation in the International Mails" in the Postal Bulletins of January 9 and January 26, 1934, and on page 12 of the February 1934 Supplement.

Postmasters will cause careful notice of the foregoing to be taken at their offices.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, having reasonable grounds to believe, and therefore alleging, that the offering sheet described in the title hereof and filed by the respondent named therein is incomplete or inaccurate in the following material respects, to wit:

(5) In that the information required to be given in Division II, Items 3 (c) (v) and 6 (a) (ii), is omitted;
